The Ghosts of the Capitol Building

The Capitol Building is the seat of the United States Congress and one of the most recognizable landmarks in the world. But beneath its majestic dome lies a dark secret - it is haunted by the ghosts of several former presidents, including Abraham Lincoln and John F. Kennedy.

Lincoln's ghost is said to haunt the Lincoln Bedroom in the White House, where he was assassinated in 1865. Witnesses have reported seeing his apparition, as well as hearing his footsteps and voice.

Kennedy's ghost is said to haunt the Senate Chamber, where he was assassinated in 1963. Witnesses have reported seeing his apparition, as well as hearing his voice.

The Ghosts of the Library of Congress

The Library of Congress is the largest library in the world, and its vast collection of books and documents is a magnet for researchers and scholars. But the library is also home to a number of ghosts, including the ghost of Thomas Jefferson.

Jefferson's ghost is said to haunt the library's Rare Book Room, where he is said to have been seen reading his own works. Witnesses have also reported hearing his footsteps and voice.

The Ghosts of the White House

The White House is the official residence of the President of the United States, and it is one of the most haunted places in Washington, D.C. The White House is said to be haunted by the ghosts of several former presidents, including George Washington, John Adams, and Andrew Jackson.

Washington's ghost is said to haunt the Blue Room in the White House, where he is said to have been seen sitting in his chair by the fireplace. Witnesses have also reported hearing his footsteps and voice.

Adams' ghost is said to haunt the Oval Office, where he is said to have been seen walking around the desk. Witnesses have also reported hearing his footsteps and voice.

Jackson's ghost is said to haunt the East Room in the White House, where he is said to have been seen dancing with his wife, Rachel. Witnesses have also reported hearing his footsteps and voice.

Other Haunted Places on Capitol Hill

In addition to the Capitol Building, the Library of Congress, and the White House, there are a number of other haunted places on Capitol Hill, including:

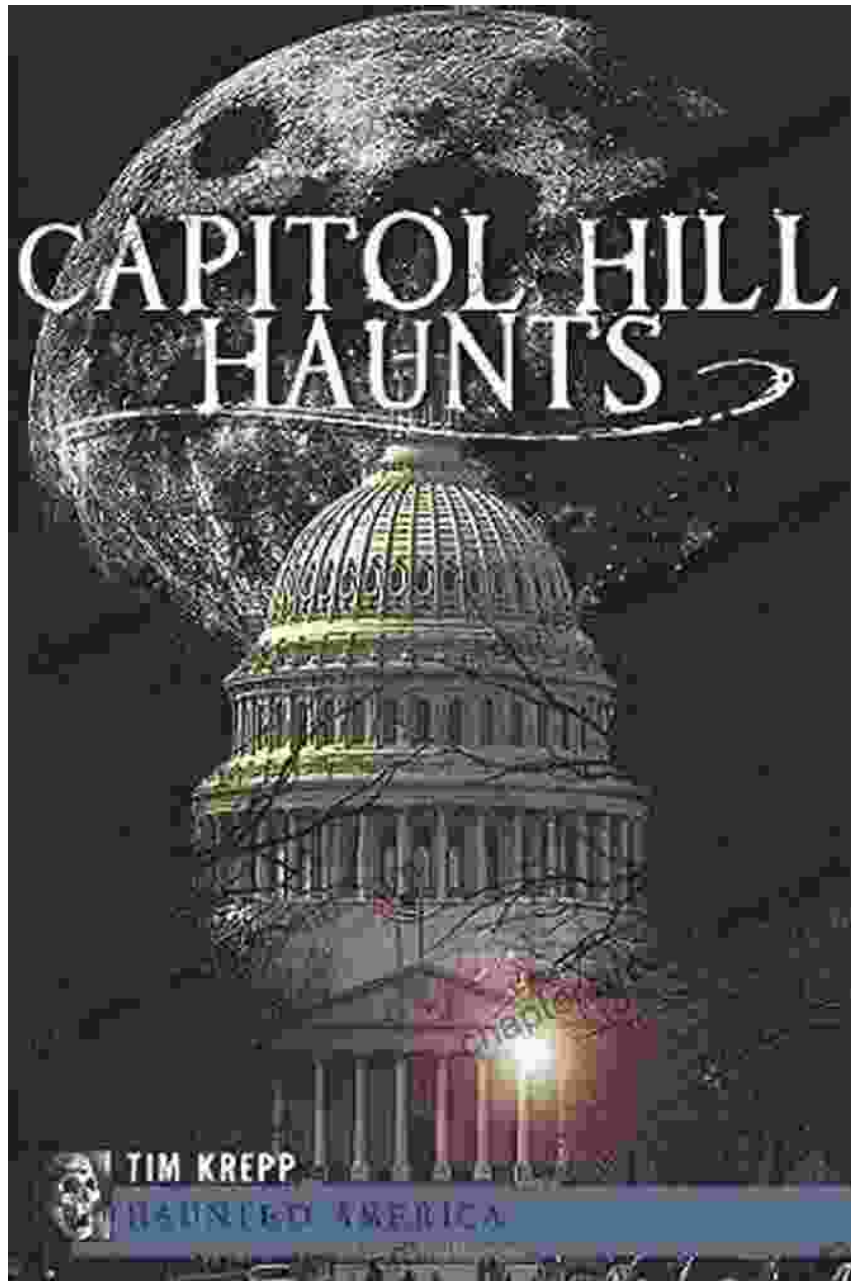

- The Supreme Court Building
- The National Archives
- The Smithsonian Institution
- The Washington Monument
- The Lincoln Memorial

These are just a few of the many haunted places on Capitol Hill. If you're brave enough, you can take a ghost tour of the neighborhood and experience the paranormal for yourself.
