A Master of Line and Form

Born in India and raised in the United States, Naberhaus's artistic journey began at an early age. Her passion for line drawing ignited at the age of seven, and since then, she has dedicated her life to mastering this fundamental element of art. Over decades of practice, Naberhaus has developed a unique and highly refined technique, allowing her to create lines of extraordinary fluidity, precision, and depth.

Naberhaus's line drawings are not mere representations of objects; they are ethereal landscapes, intricate tapestries that invite the viewer's imagination to wander and explore. Through the subtle interplay of light and shadow, thick and thin lines, she creates a sense of space, depth, and movement that defies the boundaries of the canvas. Her subjects range from the human form to abstract compositions, each piece imbued with a profound emotional resonance.

From Drawings to Monumental Sculptures

In recent years, Naberhaus has expanded her artistic practice beyond two-dimensional works, venturing into the realm of monumental sculptures. These large-scale installations, often made from steel, aluminum, or bronze, translate her intricate line drawings into tangible, three-dimensional forms.

Naberhaus's sculptures are characterized by their elegant simplicity and organic flow. They defy gravity, seeming to float effortlessly in space. Through the interplay of light and shadow, positive and negative space, she creates a sense of movement and dynamism that invites viewers to engage with the work from multiple perspectives.
