Rosh Hashanah: The Dawn of New Beginnings

The Fall Feasts commence with Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year. This sacred occasion marks a time of introspection and repentance, as we reflect on the past and set our intentions for the year ahead. The blowing of the shofar, an ancient instrument, pierces the air, calling us to awaken from spiritual slumber and embrace the transformative power of rebirth.

The shofar's piercing call summons us to introspection and renewal.

Yom Kippur: A Day of Atonement

Ten days after Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, arrives. This solemn observance is dedicated to seeking forgiveness for sins committed throughout the year. Through fasting and prayer, we acknowledge our human frailty and strive for reconciliation with both God and ourselves. Yom Kippur culminates in the Neilah service, a final opportunity for repentance and a profound sense of closure.

Yom Kippur is a time for atonement and seeking forgiveness.

Sukkot: The Feast of Booths

Following Yom Kippur, we celebrate Sukkot, the Feast of Booths. This joyful festival commemorates the Israelites' journey through the wilderness after their liberation from Egypt. For seven days, we dwell in temporary shelters, known as sukkot, as a reminder of our dependence on God's provision and the importance of community.

Sukkot is a time for joy and community.

Simchat Torah: The Joy of the Law

The Fall Feasts conclude with Simchat Torah, the Joy of the Law. This festival celebrates the completion of the annual cycle of Torah readings and the beginning of a new cycle. With dancing and singing, we express our gratitude for God's gift of the Torah and recommit ourselves to its teachings.

Simchat Torah is a joyful celebration of the Torah.
